Mansfield Homes Feel Coal Shortage

Mild Weather Helps Prevent Crisis In City

Clark and Counsel For UMW Confer With Vinson.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Attorney General Tom C. Clark and counsel for the United Mine Workers conferred with Chief Justice Vinson today as the government request for immediate supreme court review of the John L. Lewis contempt case.

At the White House President Truman would on the speech on the coal crisis he will broadcast at 9:30 (Mansfield time) tomorrow night over all radio networks.

The president, faced with a rapidly mounting fuel shortage and industrial paralysis, made no engagements to receive any callers in order to devote his time to preparing the address. It will run at least 20 minutes, White House officials said.

White House aides hinted broadly that the chief executive would make clear to the nation that—in the words of one of his cabinet officers—"there will be no giving back in this fight."

On the union side, President A. F. Whitney of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen pledged participation in a united-front conference of labor leaders urged by CIO President Philip Murray to resist the legal drive on the United Mine Workers.

Murray hawalled on the unions to stand together against "the ferocious attack now being made upon them."

If the supreme court accepts the case and by-passes the U. S. court of appeals, it could announce this Monday and possibly set arguments for later in the week.

The government, in a petition filed a few hours after the UMW appealed the conviction to the intermediate court yesterday, based its application for speedy supreme court action on the contention that the strike is causing "irreparable damage."

Bins Nearly Empty In Hundreds Of Homes

Mansfielders today were scanning weather reports and fervently hoping for continued mild weather as coal supplies in many residences here approached the vanishing point.

A spot-check survey by the News-Journal disclosed that approximately 25 per cent of Mansfield homes have less than a week's supply of fuel.

One resident reported he had "one or two days' supply." About 20 per cent of those questioned stated they used gas for heating purposes.

As the coal strike went into its 16th day, the weatherman had encouraging news, with the forecast of continued mild and unseasonably warm temperatures.

A sudden cold wave, however, could bring discomfort or misery to hundreds of Mansfielders within a few days, as low temperatures would bring greatly increased coal consumption.

Truckers Kept Busy.

Meanwhile, motor truck companies here reported a noticeable increase in freight orders as a result of the rail freight embargo, and predicted an "avalanche of business" next week.

The Michigan Motor Freight lines said it was "snowed under." The Commercial Motor Freight company said business had been heavier than usual the last two days, and expected a much heavier load next week.

One trucker raised the possibility of an embargo or limitation on motor freight "sometime next week." He said truck lines "couldn't possibly" handle all the railroad's freight, and if the coal strike continues another week, motor trucking would be helpless before the onslaught."

The Mansfield post office today released figures which showed that parcel post shipments on Thursday and yesterday as compared with Wednesday's shipments were more than doubled.

Post Office Jammed.

C. L. Ford, acting postmaster, said on Wednesday, before the government announced the size and weight limitations on parcel post which went into effect last night, 2,280 packages were shipped. More than 4,500 packages were mailed daily on the following two days.

Ford also pointed out that although perishable goods such as baby chicks and flowers were exempt from the order, the cancellation of many trains has resulted in great confusion, and that the post office is unable to promise delivery within a specified period.

No new cutbacks in production were announced by Mansfield industries today. Several rumors on layoffs in industries here proved false after a careful check was made. Additional layoffs are expected next week, however, if the coal strike continues.

Production line workers of the Westinghouse plant here will start to work next Tuesday, it was reported today by company officials. A report yesterday indicated that the first work day next week was Monday but this report was in error, officials said. Office workers in the plant will report for the full week.

CHILDREN HURT IN CITY TRAFFIC

Two Mansfield children were injured yesterday in separate accidents when they were struck by automobiles, police reported.

Margaret Marshall, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Marshall, 632 South Diamond street, received a fractured leg and cuts and bruises when she ran into an automobile while running to catch a bus at Lexington and Ninth avenues about 5:30 p. m.

Deming Lowrey, 31, of 500 Edgewood road, told police he did not see the child dart into the street. He was released by police. The child was admitted to General hospital.

Willie Jamison, nine years old, 219½ North Diamond street, was treated at General hospital for head lacerations after he ran into an automobile at East Fifth and North Diamond streets at 2 p. m.

Floyd Spayd, 30, of 130 West Third street, driver of the car, told police the boy ran into the path of his machine. He was not held by police.

O'NEIL'S REPORTS 50,000 FOR OPENING

M. O'Neil company officials today estimated that nearly 50,000 persons visited the company's new Mansfield store yesterday, its opening day.

The opening day shopper total here compares with the 31,000 persons who were on hand for the company's other newest store at Coshocton. It was opened in July.

Women Leap to Deaths From Burning Hotel As Fragile Life Lines Sway In The Wind

By CHICK HOSCH

ATLANTA—(AP)—I saw four women leap to their deaths from the burning Winecoff hotel in chill pre-dawn darkness today.

I reached the inferno on famous Peachtree street in less than 45 minutes after the fire was discovered in time to see several women leap to their deaths, and others to mortal injuries.

Flames were shooting from the fourth, fifth and sixth floors and through the smoke and blazes dozens of guests could be seen clinging to the ledges or leaning from windows.

Ropes made of sheets and other bed covers hung down the sides of the building. These fragile life lines to safety were buffeted by the winds and streams of water.

Body Lands at Feet.

I crossed to the hotel entrance, barely reaching the doorway when a woman's body hurtled through the marquee and landed in the street at my feet. One body could be seen draped grotesquely over the ledge of a balcony which the marquee covers.

I started up stairs, but at the second floor heard that several of the trapped were jumping from the rear of the hotel into an alley. I ran to the rear of the hotel, but tripped over something and fell sprawling. Recovering, I turned to see several bodies lying on the walk. An elderly man sobbed hysterically at the side of a woman he was trying futilely to lift.

It was too dark to get much of a picture of the scene there so I returned to the front of the building again. Several other guests, most of them women, came hurtling down into the outstretched firenets.

None Walked Away.

Of the 15 or 20 that I saw jump, none walked away. They hit the nets with such force that firemen couldn't hold them in most cases, managing only to check their leap.

City Detective E. B. Brooks told me of seeing one woman descend a sheet-rope three floors to an extension ladder hoisted by firemen. As we stood talking, we watched a woman back over the ledge of a ninth floor window and start down a rope of twisted bed clothing.

Between floors she lost her footing against the water drenched building and her body started swaying and slowly turning in the light of flames lapping at her feet. We watched as she turned loose and hurtled down, flat against the walls, screaming.

Her body hit the marquee.

"God," muttered Brooks, "I knew she couldn't clear that marquee."

Frantic fear seemed to catch the trapped at that point and as fast as firemen could clear the net of a broken body, another would smash into it.

It chilled you to the depths of your soul. It left you sickened and weary.

OHIO INDUSTRY TAKES 'HOLIDAY'

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Thousands of Ohio workers faced another long week-end today as a number of industries announced "holidays" for today and Monday in an effort to stretch dwindling coal supplies or adjust to a freight embargo caused by the mine shutdown.

For several thousand other workers, the week-end included an indefinite lay-off; and unless the 17-day-old soft coal production stoppage is ended, unemployment in Ohio was expected to double or triple next week.

Shutdowns and lay-offs included:

Ashtabula — The Lake City Malleable, Inc., plant foundry, employing about 500.

Hamilton — Ford Motor Company plant, 800 employes.

Findlay — Buckeye Traction Ditcher company, a subsidiary of Gar Wood Industries, Inc., about 1,200.

Lorain — The National Tube company banked its third blast furnace since the mine shutdown and took three open hearths out of operation.

Springfield—The Oliver Corp., 1,300.

Marion—Four plants employing 900.

Cleveland — Superior Foundry, about 400.

Baby Brings Vet Notice To 'Get Out'

PORTLAND, Ore. —(INS)— A Portland war veteran and his wife displayed letters of congratulations from the mayor today and of eviction from the landlord—because they have had a baby.

Mayor Earl Riley wrote Jack DuLong that "the arrival of a new citizen is an event that means much to your future happiness and much to the city of Portland."

His landlord wrote: "Babies are not allowed in the apartment so you must vacate in 30 days."

BALMY WEATHER DUE TO REMAIN

Balmy weather is going to remain over Sunday and into the early part of the week, forecasts indicated today.

The weatherman said Sunday will be partly cloudy and continued mild. High temperature yesterday was 56 and the low last night was 37.

The entire weather map continued to show above-normal readings today.

Increasing Output of Coal Hints of Crack In Strike

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The nation's industry today braced itself for further unemployment inroads from the coal strike amid reports the tiny trickle of fuel coming from the pits was increasing slightly in West Virginia and Pennsylvania—two biggest bituminous coal states.

With more than 290,000 workers idle, in addition to 400,000 miners, new and sharper setbacks were predicted on every hand as a result of the added freight ban. Total strike idle of 5,000,000 was forecast by year's end if the shutdown lasts that long.

In West Virginia, where 102,000 soft coal diggers normally work, Jesse V. Sullivan, secretary of the West Virginia Coal association, declared "daily increasingly defiant" miners have returned to work at scattered operations, "seemingly fearless" of possible union retaliation.

The operators' spokesman said national production reached 2,000,000 tons for the week ended Nov. 30 as compared with the 600,000 tons he asserted was being dug weekly during last spring's walkout. Normal production is 12,000,000 tons a week, he declared, adding:

"Increasing tonnage may be the visible crack in the . . . strike through which (John L.) Lewis sought to freeze the nation into submission."

Sullivan said strip tonnage in a dozen counties was reported normal and added one of the largest working mines employed about 550 men.

The Navy Coal Mines Administration said 441 mines were operating in Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, employing more than 13,000 union and non-union miners and producing an estimated 185,000 tons. That output represents 15 per cent of the area's normal production.

Meanwhile, unemployment spread with steel and iron counting a total of more than 55,000 idle, railroads reporting 66,000 furloughed, and miscellaneous industries accounting for 171,000.

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Adolph Rosenberg, 65, president of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, died Friday. He was head of the Giddings company, a women's apparel shop.

SIGN NEW LEASE ON SANATORIUM

A new two-year lease of the building housing Richland county's tuberculosis Sanatorium at 535 Lexington avenue was signed by the county commissioners yesterday.

Providing for a yearly rental fee of $6,000, the lease stipulates that the commissioners may terminate it upon three months' notice. The lease replaces one costing the county $5,000 yearly which expired July 21.

Signing of the lease followed months of negotiations. Under the terms of the lease, Mrs. Barbara J. Nichols, administratrix of the T. Amos Jones estate which owns the building, is to pay the taxes on the property and keep the exterior of the building and the grounds in repair.

The county is to keep the interior repaired, pay for utility services and make whatever changes health and hospital laws and regulations might require for the interior. Commissioners this morning said Mrs. Nichols verbally agreed to pave the driveway as a dust-control measure.

Halsey Relieved Of Active Duty

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Fleet Adm. William F. Halsey, jr., the daring "Bull" of World War II—was relieved of active participation in the navy today for the first time in 46 years.

It was reported that the 64-year-old Halsey, now recuperating in a New York hospital from an operation, had himself requested the order.

IDENTIFICATION OF DEAD SLOW

ATLANTA—(AP)—Red Cross officials early this morning began the task of identifying the dead and injured in the disastrous Winecoff hotel fire and. Clifford B. Fligg, area public information director, said it would be a "slow and confusing process."

A carload of blood plasma, much of which was returned from overseas, was made available to Atlanta hospitals and radio appeals were made for blood donors.

It was expected to take several hours to prepare the first casualty list, Fligg said.

Comer L. Rowan, night hotel clerk, said he first learned of the blaze at about 3:40 a. m. from a Negro girl elevator operator.

"When she told me of the fire," Rowan said, "I sent her to find the bellboy who was making a routine floor check, and asked her to aid him in arousing the guests.

"I myself ran to the switchboard and began phoning the rooms, warning the guests of the fire. I couldn't say much to each guest—time was short with me—but I told those I talked to to get to safety and to be certain to close the doors to their rooms to keep a draft from spreading the flames."

Scores Killed In Leaps From High Windows

Origin of Blaze Remains a Mystery; Disaster Ranks Among Nation's Worst In History.

By BURNS BENNETT

ATLANTA, Ga. — (UP) — Fire raged throughout the packed Winecoff hotel on Peachtree street today in a matter of minutes and at least 112 persons perished in the smoke and flames of the holocaust or by plunging to the street.

The death toll was soaring into one of the most terrible fire disasters in the nation's history.

(The Associated Press said at least 115 were dead and a check of hospitals showed 38 injured.)

The latest check of hospitals and mortuaries within a radius of 20 miles of Atlanta showed 108 bodies admitted. More were arriving as quickly as ambulances could deposit them. Many of the more than 100 initially reported injured were now among the dead.

It was the worst fire in Atlanta's history and the toll already had far exceeded the last major fire disaster in the country—the LaSalle hotel fire in Chicago six months ago which took 61 lives.

The fire was touched off—it had not been determined how—between 3 and 4 a. m., among the lower stories of the 15-floor building. It shot upward and downward within minutes.

Trapped and enveloped in the torch were most of the 280 guests. All the Winecoff's 194 rooms were occupied. Many of them never had a chance and a lot of them took the quick way out—headlong through the window. Others stood at their windows and screamed until they fell back choking in the flames and smoke.

A few survived miraculously by swinging from window to window on bedsheets along the upper floors. That way they were able to get to the few rooms the fire didn't reach and wait for firemen, or reach adjoining buildings.

Every piece of fire equipment and every disaster unit in Atlanta rushed into action. But there was little they could do for those caught in the swift onrush of the flames.

By 7 a. m. the flames had been extinguished. But the Winecoff, with its stately facade across Peachtree street from Atlanta's theater district, was a hulk with scores of black gouges where its windows had been.

Bodies Burned to Bones.

The bodies poured into Grady hospital, which also serves as the city morgue, were mostly burned or broken beyond recognition. Some were merely bones that looked like they had been through a crematory.

Down on Peachtree street in front of the Winecoff the procession of bodies was continuing from the lobby as firemen and Red Cross workers brought down victims from the upper floors. The tiny lobby was a tangle of fire hose and heaped clothing. It was under half a foot of water but still hot.

"And that was supposed to be a fireproof hotel," said a fireman who had been temporarily overcome by smoke and taken to the emergency first aid station across the street. "My God, to think of all those people dying up there. And there are a lot of them up there yet."

As he spoke, an ambulance crew came by the door carrying a body under a blanket. They uncovered it briefly to show the figure of what had been a man. His once-white shirt was mottled with the black of smoke and the red of his blood so that it looked grotesquely like a lumberman's shirt.

* * * * *

Major Calls Fire 'Worse Than Anything Over There'

ATLANTA—(AP)—Maj. Gen. P. W. Baade, of Washington, D. C., spent 10 months on active duty with the famed 35th division, but said today that the Winecoff hotel fire here was "worse than anything over there."

"At least you fell you hand a chance in dodging bullets, but you're just helpless when you're trapped in a hotel room with roaring flames all around you," he said.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs Baade were taken from their sixth floor room by firemen who ran a ladder up to their window.

One of the most dramatic escapes from the raging flames was that of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Bault, of Murphy, N. C., who drew the eyes of hundreds of spectators on famed Peachtree street as they crawled on the 14th floor cornice from one room to another.

Bault, 42, said he and his wife, Corrine, 36, were wakened by the flames creeping into their room. He said he stretched bed sheets from his room to that of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Phillips, of Lithonia, Ga., over which the Baults crawled to the doubtful sanctuary of the Phillips' room.

Mattresses Balk Flames.

Bault said he and Phillips kept the flames out of the second room by stacking the mattresses against the door and keeping them well soaked with water from the bathroom.

Mrs. W. Y. Johnson, of Eufaula, Ala., on the ninth floor, said she was awakened by screaming and the heavy smell of smoke. She said she tried to call the hotel office, but got no answer, so she went to the door.

When she opened the door, she said the room filled with smoke and flames, so she slammed it shut. She said the bathroom window was the only one she could get to and open. Firemen ran a ladder to the small window and she wriggled through to safety.

Bellboy Trapped.

Bill Mobley, Atlanta, the only bellboy on duty, said he was trapped on the fifth floor when he took some ice to 510.

"Everything seemed all right when I ran the elevator up to five," he said. "I wasn't in the room over two minutes, but the hall was full of smoke and flame when I tried to leave. Up to then we hadn't even smelled smoke."

Mobley said he and the hotel engineer had to hold the man in 510 to keep him from jumping out the window.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh S. Ahern of Washington, D. C., said they were awakened by "horrible screams" shortly after 3:30 a. m. Fireman ran a ladder up to their fifth floor room and took them out.

"We lost everything we had," Mrs. Ahern said, adding sobbingly, "even the picture of my mother who just passed away. I wouldn't have taken anything for it."

Japanese 'Sneak' Attack on Pearl Harbor Threw U. S. Into War Just Five Years Ago

By MARGUERITE MILLER

Five years ago this afternoon—on a bright, warm day like this—Mansfield learned of the Japs' "sneak" attack on Pearl Harbor which brought the United States into the greatest war the world has known.

Dec. 7, 1941, was on a Sunday. Mansfielders were in movie shows or seated at home listening to quiet music on the radio when the tragic news was flashed.

It was a solemn public that read The News-Journal extra and heard broadcasts of the attack. It wasn't long before scores of youths in the city were lining up to enlist for duty in the armed forces.

Today found the same warm sun shining above the city, but there was a different spirit within it. Veterans' organizations adopted the theme of "looking forward, instead of looking back on a tragic past." No observances of the day were planned.

Simple ceremonies at Pearl Harbor today marked the anniversary of the attack on the naval base which Americans will never forget.

The navy, whose harbor still holds the battered hulks of the battleships Oklahoma and Arizona as grim reminders of Japanese treachery, observed the anniversary as another work day.

On the international front, the United Nations moved into high gear to resolve some of the major problems of the peace. Foremost was the question of world disarmament, outlawing of the atomic bomb and all other weapons capable of mass destruction, and the establishment of rigid international controls to enforce the agreement.

Here on the home front, veterans began their second year of promoting housing projects to supplement a critical scarcity of living quarters, while industries and transportation faced a shut down because of striking soft coal miners.

MRS. M'CUTCHAN DIES AT HOME

Mrs. Harriette McCutchan died at the family home, 115 Penn avenue, at noon Friday following a lingering illness. She was born in Quincy, Ill., coming to Mansfield about 30 years ago.

Prior to her illness Mrs. McCutchan was active in Women's Federation activities and served as president of the federation of this city as well as in different state offices. She was an active member in the Congregational church and the Audubon club.

Surviving are her husband, H. C. McCutchan, a son Lt. Don McCutchan of Memphis, Tenn., a daughter, Mrs. H. T. Pollett, and grandson, and a granddaughter.

The body will be taken to Cleveland Monday for cremation. Memorial services will be conducted at a later date. Friends are requested to omit flowers.

MISS SHELDON DIES FOLLOWING ILLNESS

Miss Cora L. Sheldon, 328 Newman street, died last night at the Mansfield Sanitarium-Hospital after a lingering illness.

She was born in Adario, and had been a resident of Mansfield for the last 50 years. She was employed at Westinghouse until ill health forced her retirement several years ago. She was a member of Grace Gospel Tabernacle.

Surviving are two nieces, Mrs. Pauline Silsby, of Mansfield, and Mrs. C. A. Hoar, of Wellington, and a nephew, Dr. R. H. Sheldon, of Grosse Ille, Mich.

Funeral services will be held at the Finefrock funeral home Monday at 3:30 p. m., in charge of Rev. James E. Davey, pastor of the Grace Gospel Tabernacle. Burial will be in the Greenwich cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home.

Pastor Serves On Committee

Rev. Ben F. Hagelbarger, pastor of the First Christian church, has been named to the committee of Ohio ministers who will meet in Columbus Wednesday to work out details for the proposed Temple of Goodwill, which, if plans carry through, will be erected on the Scioto river front on ground given by the Franklin County Planning commission.

The committee will be composed of 34 churchmen representing 11 Protestant denominations and 17 sections of the state. It will meet at 11 a. m. for a two-day session.

The Temple of Goodwill, as proposed by the Ohio Council of Churches will be available to all Protestant denominations and interdenominational groups in the country who agree in advance to use the space.

At the two-day session, churchmen will work out details for ways to raise money for the project and means of consulting with national groups on their cooperation.

Former Galion Resident Dies In California

GALION—Funeral services for Mrs. Anna Chateau Hassinger, former Galion school teacher who died last Monday at her home in Los Angeles, Calif., will be held at 2 p. m. Monday at the Snyder funeral home. Rev. Herbert S. Garnes, jr., pastor of the First Lutheran church, will officiate. Burial will be made in Fairview cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home after 7 p. m. today.

Mrs. Hassinger and her sister, Kathryn Chateau, left Galion 51 years ago for Los Angeles. The sister is the only survivor.

Born in Chicago, Ill., Mrs. Hassinger came to Galion when she was a child and was graduated from Galion high school in 1883. For many years prior to her marriage to Jonas Hassinger she taught school here. Her husband died several years ago. Their last residence in Galion was at 201 North Union street.

Several months ago Mrs. Hassinger suffered a fractured hip in a fall.

ILLNESS FATAL TO MISS FERREE

Miss Minnie Ferree, 60, died at her home in Franklin township at about 11 p. m. Friday following a long illness. She was born in the township Dec. 4, 1886, and spent her entire life there. She was a member of the Franklin Methodist church.

Miss Ferree is survived by nieces and nephews, Paul Ferree of Franklin township, Jay Ferree of Pittsburgh, Pa., Harold Ferree of Mansfield, Mrs. David Sherry of Mansfield, Mrs. Leo Pittinger of Pavonia, and Mrs. Edward Butenshon of Franklin township.

Funeral services will be at the Franklin church Monday at 1:30 p. m., in charge of Rev. F. H. Eckert. Burial will be in the Franklin cemetery.

Friends may call at the Finefrock funeral home.

MOOSE OFFICIAL TO SPEAK SUNDAY

J. Jack Stoehr, past supreme Moose governor, and present regional director of Ohio, will be guest speaker at the Mansfield Moose lodge Tuesday at 6:30 p. m., Lodge Governor Lloyd Hughes announced today.

Stoehr, known as one of the "biggest men" in the organization both from point of activities and size (he weighs about 450), is known throughout the state, and has many friends in Mansfield. Seventy-five candidates will be admitted that night.

Following the initiation and Stoehr's talk there will be entertainment and refreshments.

Illness Fatal to Keller Child, 9

Paul Admonishes the Churches

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—I Cor. 6:9a-10; 11:17-27; Romans 13:13-14; Ephes. 5:18-21

By Alfred J. Buescher

"Nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, shall inherit the kingdom of God."

"When ye come together in the church, I hear that there be divisions among you; and I partly believe it."

"Let us walk honestly, as in the day; not in rioting and drunkenness, not in strife and envying."

"Speak to yourselves in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs."

MEMORY VERSE—Psalm 27:11.

RITES TO MARK BIBLE SUNDAY IN MANSFIELD

Several Pastors to Recognize Observance In Sermons.

Universal Bible Sunday will be observed by a number of Mansfield churches tomorrow in connection with the world-wide recognition of the Bible as sponsored by the American Bible society.

Special sermons about the Bible and music appropriate to the world theme have been arranged by several Mansfield congregations.

The American Bible Society, which sponsors this universal observance, is an organization supported by most Protestant denominations for the distribution of Bibles to every race and creed throughout the world. The society translates the Bible into all languages for all peoples. It is a non-profit society, organized solely for the universal advancement of the Bible.

At the First Presbyterian church, Rev. David N. Roller will speak on the theme, "The Word and the World" at the 10:45 a. m. service.

At St. Mark's Lutheran church, Rev. C. A. Portz will address his congregation on the subject, "The Word of Power for a Power Age," at the morning service.

Rev. Charles F. Sheriff will display a number of Bibles written in foreign languages as well as old and unusual Bibles in connection with his morning sermon "The Bible in a Modern World."

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL

Sunday school will convene at the parish house, 514 Park avenue west, at 10:30 a. m. with V. P. Sparks, superintendent in charge.

Morning worship will be held at the Park Avenue Baptist church at noon. Rev. Matthew G. Madden's sermon topic is "When Evil Ministers to the Soul's Final Good." The choir will sing the anthem, "Savior, When Night Involves the Sky", by Shelley. The offertory solo, "He Was Alone", by Paxson, will be sung by Helen Dickson.

Pilgrim Fellowship will meet at the parish house at 7 p. m.

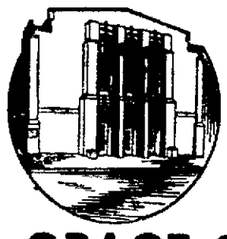
Rev. Earl Lee, Pastor

DO YOU KNOW —



that—W. G. Weston, now at the Grace Gospel Church is, no doubt, the greatest evangelist of this generation but less than 3% of the people of Mansfield have ever heard him.

that—the most important fact in your life now—is to hear this great evangelist. Come and bring the whole family and have no regrets later.

Who Are the Spirits In SPIRITUALISM?

Is It God, Man or Devil?

S. K. LEHNHOFF

Can the living talk with the dead? Do the dead actually appear? We shall tell you of the things that Spiritualism is doing and then give you the Bible explanation of the phenomena.

A GREAT LECTURE THAT YOU WILL REMEMBER

Dr. Lehnhoff is not a Spiritualist, but is well qualified to reveal what the Bible says on this question.

Tyger Cagers Sputter To 32-23 Triumph

SPORTS ROUND UP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—British golf pros are wondering whether they can afford to send a Ryder Cup team to the United States next summer, what with the high cost of living, currency restrictions and a treasury depleted by the war. . . . It really is something to wonder about. . . . In pre-war days, it was possible to send a golf team abroad at a cost of about $1,000 per man. This year estimates obtained by the U. S Golf association for next summer's Walker cup tour to England are around $1,250. For a nine-man team (the usual number) the cost will run about $14,000, with some incidental expenses, as compared to the $9,380 it cost in 1938 . . . Ryder cup expenses probably would be about the same and none of it comes back at the gate. . . . Maybe the PGA should sign up George May to stage the matches, take the cash and to heck with dignity.

IT SAYS HERE

Buck O'Neill, the trotting horse Tub Thumper, relays this yarn told by "Bi" Shively, veteran reinsman. . . . When "Bi" was a young fellow he was riding running horses at a fair in Missouri. . . . Another jock who didn't get his horse away was complaining about the starter and remarked: "I'd like to punch him in the nose." . . . "I wouldn't do it," an old groom told the kid, "that starter is Frank James."

Shively claims that his love of horses proved there must have been some good in the famous outlaw, but isn't "bandit" a comparatively soft term when race drivers talk about starters?

SPORTSPOURRI

Red Rolfe, who apparently is out as a Yankee coach, may turn up as pilot of the Toronto Huskies in the Basketball Association of America, the club Ed Sadowski recently quit. . . . Red taught basketball as well as baseball at Yale. . . . During the first month of the BBAA season, Providence's Ernie Calverley, known as a fireball basket-shooter, outdistanced all rivals by collecting 40 assists. . . .

Glass bowl game at Toledo today is the first at which the winner actnally will receive a bowl. A glass bowl, of course but no goldfish. . . . Incidentally, the Toledo team in that bowl game will wear jerseys borrowed from Michigan because during the regular season Bates wore the same color, white.

Simpson Gets First Victory

ASHLAND — John Simpson junior high school of Mansfield defeated the Ashland junior varsity, 28-26, in the preliminary game to the Ashland-Cleveland Rhodes cage contest here last night.

Coach Bob Kennedy's basketeers, paced by Don Cline, who scored five field goals and one charity toss, scored eight points to six for the J-V's in the final period to break a 20-20 deadlock in the final frame.

Lelersch and Ambrose led Ashland with nine and eight tallies, respectively.

Ashland swamped Rhodes, 39-32.

FINAL PERIOD POINT SPLURGE DOWNS WAPAK

Ollie Cline Splits Mesh For 16 In Ragged Game.

By FRED THARP
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

Mansfield Tyger 1946-47 basketball machine sputtered and stalled for nearly three quarters last night before finding the right mixture of hoop fuel to roll over Wapakoneta Blume high, 32 to 23, on the Senior high school hardwood.

The Bengal basketeers were plagued with a plethora of bad passes and sloppy ball-handling, an early season ailment that is bound to be remedied, and had to give way through most of the contest to the scrappy visitors. Only once in the first 22 minutes did the Tygers forge ahead and that lead lasted only seconds in the second chukker.

A basket by Nick Gagich followed by Chuck Sisco's lone fielder sent Coach Vern Hoffman's club into the van in the closing minutes of the third quarter and they held on to rack up 15 points to Blume's three in the final 12 minutes.

Apparently the championship fever was still running high in Wapak's veins as Coach Paul Schofer's lads gave Mansfield quite a scare. The Blume aggregation won the Northwest district title in 1945 and again in 1946. Last season Mansfield was the only club to defeat the Redskins during the regular campaign.

Johnny Wehner, a regular on the 1944-45 quint, spent last season in the blues of Uncle Sam's navy. His ball-hawkishness was one of the main reasons that the Bengals looked off-color. Wehner also led the visitors' point-making with three connections from the floor and two from the charity line.

A slight bit of between halves vocal legerdemain by Hoffman proved just the tonic for the baffled Bengals. They went to the dressing rooms trailing, 17-15, and looked like a beaten club. However, the last half and particularly the final quarter when they rolled up ten straight points, the black-clad cagers were the toast of the 1,450 fans that jammed into the Tyger lair.

Ollie Cline, whose athletic feats are table-talk around Mansfield, notched seven of the ten points in the scoring splurge and easily annexed individual laurels with a total of 16 markers. He had six field goals and made four of five charity tosses.

Cline, Ralph Majors, Gagich and Tom Bloor were the top quartet of Bengal performers with the fifth spot being shared by Sisco and Jerry Robfogel. The latter pair were in the starting lineup but alternated after Bloor was sent in early in the tilt.

Chuck Schaub, 1945-46 Blume regular, started the hardwood party with a couple of "sucker" shots. Majors one-handed one through the mesh after 3 min., 30 sec. had elapsed and Bloor entered the game in time to tie up the count.

Wehner landed one from in close and Bill Miller dribbled through the Bengals for a lay-up to give Wapak a four-point advantage. Cline sunk a pivot shot just before the quarter ended. Johnny Neiter connected in the second quarter to make it 10-6 but three points by Cline and one by Majors knotted the tally.

Neiter made good from the foul line and then Bloor's strike from the keyhole put Hoffman's club ahead for the first time. Two quickies by Neiter and a fast-break connection by Bill Miller gave Wapak its largest lead, 17-12. Cline picked up three to narrow the margin to 17-15 at half-time.

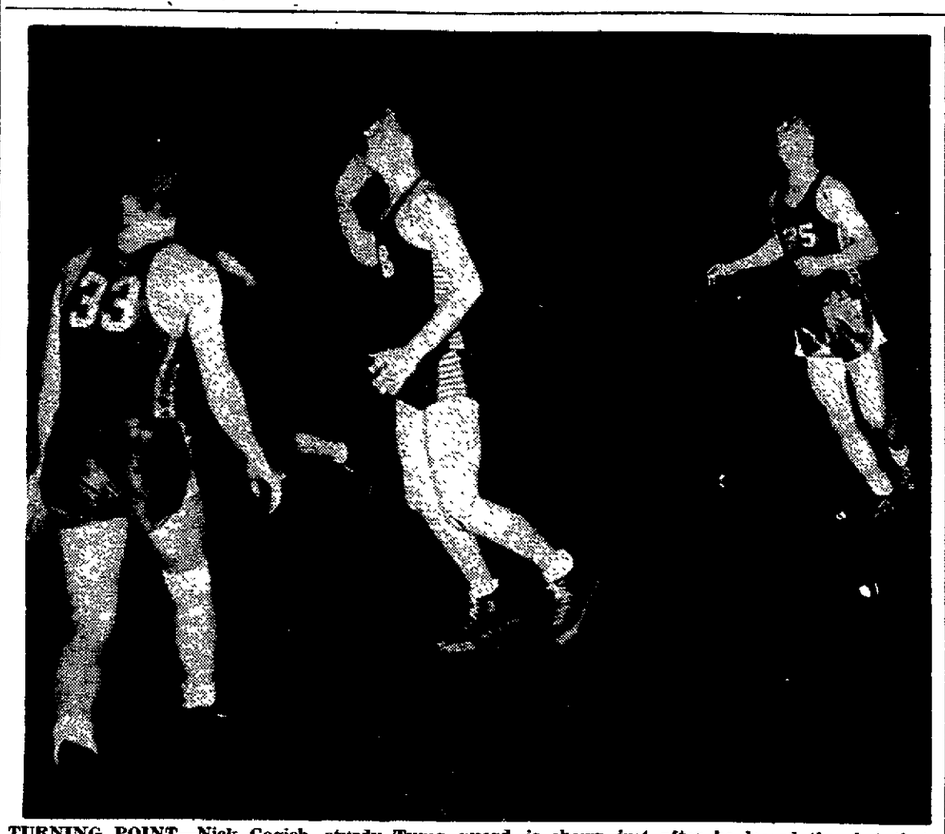
Wehner southpawed the leather through the hoop to open the last half and Bloor split the mesh from in close. Wehner dropped home a gift shot. Cline, Gagich and Sisco combined to send the Bengals in front 22-20 although Wehner's second charity connection cut the margin to one-point at the quarter.

The Tygers then roared for their 10 straight points which sealed the contest.

Wapak stayed overnight at the Leland and leaves sometime this afternoon for Fostoria. The Redmen lost a 47 to 38 decision to Sandusky last night after having defeated Shelby last week, 29-26.

Fred Staub's Sophomores toyed with the Wapak reserves in the preliminary, 44-18. The Tyger cubs led at the periods, 15-1, 34-4 and 35-10. Bernie Weaver and Norm Shibinsky picked up 17 of the points.

Madison Whips Shelby for First Victory



TURNING POINT—Nick Gagich, sturdy Tyger guard, is shown just after he loosed the shot that tied up the Mansfield-Wapakoneta game, 20-20, last night in the Senior high gym. Wapak players are Danny McKeever (33) in the foreground and Johnny Wehner (35) in the back.

It's Glass Bowl Time In Toledo

TOLEDO — (INS) — The Glass bowl—newest of the football bowls—will be overflowing today with some 15,000 fans eager to see Bates college, champions of Maine, tangle with Toledo university.

These Toledo Rockets, much heavier than the Bobcats from Maine, have been installed a 13-point favorite, despite the fact that Toledo lost two games while Bates went undefeated. However, Toledo has been playing in a more rugged league.

Toledo is the glass center of the world, and the glass industry has underwritten this game. A 25-pound glass bowl, suitably inscribed, is the bone of contention, and the local sport fraternity hopes to see it acquire in time the mellow tradition surrounding the Old Oaken Bucket fought over by Purdue and Indiana.

Mt. Gilead Scalps Edison, 49 to 51

MT. GILEAD — Scoring at will, the Mt. Gilead Indians scalped Edison here last night, 49 to 31.

Coach Bob Blose's quintet vaulted into a 10-3 lead at the quarter and was in front at the other intermission points, 18-9 and 34-19. Dick Campbell notched 12 points for scoring honors.

Mt. Gilead copped the reserve game, 38-22.

Lexington, Butler Take County Tilts

Butler and Lexington retained their grip on first place in the Richland county league race by defeating Shiloh and Plymouth last night. In the other games, Bellville edged Lucas, 30-28, and Ontario swamped Union, 33-19.

Coach Ed Wysocki's Butler squad rolled up the highest score in their victory over Shiloh, 56-23. Substitute forward Dick Swendal led the victors with three baskets and seven charity tosses. Nine of Wysocki's ten men scored.

Lexington dropped Plymouth, 33-19. Coach John Rees' cagers opened up in the final stanzo to strengthen their four point lead, when Rollin Ford started popping the oval in from all angles. Ford accounted for seven of his nine points this period as the Minutemen tallied 16 points.

Ray Cline, Lexington center was tied with Plymouth's Hampton for individual honors. Each accounted for 10 points.

The Bellville-Lucas fracas proved the most exciting as the Bluejays had to go two over-times before edging Lucas 30-28.

Don Walker scored the winning basket after the first over time was scoreless. Lucas had led the Bluejays most of the way and with only three minutes to go had a six point lead.

Ontario took command of the Union cagers early in the first quarter and gradually pulled away to its 33-19 win.

Levingston, Ontario forward, was high man for both teams with four field goals and three gratis tosses.

LAST HALF DRIVE WINS FOR RAM QUINT, 31-23

By BRUCE M'GINTY

A determined Mansfield Madison cage team put on the necessary spark in the last half to defeat a stubborn Shelby high quintet, 31-23, at the Madison gym last night. It was Madison's first victory in two starts.

Eldon Pritchard paced the Rams with six baskets and two free tosses for 14 points, while Dave Connelly led the losers with two field goals and seven free throws for 11 points.

Bob Wilson, Madison pivotman, kept the Rams in the ball game by completely controlling the backboards on both offense and defense.

The teams were deadlocked at the quarter, 8-8, and at halftime Coach Jeff DeHaven's squad held a 12-10 edge. Coming back the second half, Madison gained a 19-13 lead at the quarter and then went on to score 12 markers while Shelby was sinking 10 points.

Pritchard opened the scoring with two consecutive pivot shots, but Connelly came back with three free throws.

Shelby then took the lead when Bill Lucas, forward, sank a one-handed shot from the center of the floor. Connelly made it 6-4 when he sank his third straight foul shot.

Wilson rebounded for the Rams' next basket and Connelly added another two points when he stole the ball and dribbled into the basket for a push-shot. Herbie Eldridge, Madison, evened the count, 8-8, with a one-handed shot from the side of the floor.

The second quarter opened with Connelly sinking another free toss. Pritchard came back with two baskets on a rebound and pivot shot and Connelly sank his sixth consecutive foul, as the second period ended with Madison leading 12-10.

Eldridge committed his fifth foul and went to the showers shortly after the second half began. Connelly sank another free toss and Madison then scored seven points before Shelby drew blood when Connelly slipped in under the basket for two points.

In this period, Ernsberger sank a free throw, the first foul committed by Shelby, and Pritchard split the nets with a set shot from the corner, followed by Dick Poth's gift shot.

Pritchard added another two points from his forward position and Poth again added a free toss, and Madison led 19-13, going into the final frame.

Wayne Strang, Madison, dribbled into the corner and sank a one-hander and Pritchard sank a free throw. Ernsberger accounted for two more points on a set shot and Pritchard scored one from the foul line.

Seitz, Shelby, then added a gratis shot and Poth came back to sink a bunny shot. Lucas made good on two desperate long shots.

Wilson was hacked by Gates when he attempted a sucker shot and scored both the basket and free toss.

As the game ended Keiser drove in for two points followed by Reed who was fouled and made his gratis toss good.

Coach Bill Kopcial's reserve squad defeated Shelby's reserves, 13-10. Madison led 6-1 at the half.

Dick Bader paced the Rams with two field goals and two free throws for six points. Red Fackler led the Whippets with one basket and five gratis heaves.

Try and Stop Me

—By Bennet Cerf

The sons and daughters of Mr. Bauer held a conference to discuss the wayward habits of their aging parent. His eldest son came to Bauer with the consensus of the meeting.

"Pop," he said, "we have decided that a man of your age simply has no right to go out with young chorus girls so often. You're absolutely ruining your health. I want you to promise me that you will go to the doctor and ask him how often he will permit you to take out these chickens."

The old man reluctantly consented and visited his doctor the very next day. When he came back the son was waiting for him. "Well," he said, "what did the doctor say?" The old man scratched his head in a rather perplexed manner and said, "I'm not sure, my boy. How many times a week is semi-annual?"

Five Years After Pearl Harbor

YOU PROBABLY remember exactly where you were at about three o'clock in the afternoon five years ago today. That was when news of the treacherous attack on Pearl Harbor was flashed across the nation. It may be unpleasant to recall events of the three and a half years which followed that grim Sunday, but it is important.

A few words evoke a tragic panorama: Guadalcanal, Kwajalein, Okinawa, North Africa, Normandy, "The Bulge," Remagen. It all ended in victory. We are not forgetting that. But the cost behind that victory, in lost and broken lives, can never fully be tallied.

No honest man can say, "It all might have been prevented." But every honest observer knows the nation was caught grievously napping. December 7, 1941, lives twice in infamy. The Japanese stabbed a peaceful nation in the back; and the leaders of the United States had been negligent in their trust of protecting the people.

The warning inherent in Pearl Harbor day extends to present and future leaders of the U. S. But it extends also to private citizens and to the press. The press particularly must be on guard. It must be unafraid to pry into the secrets of bureaucracy, whether civil or military, and to bare such secrets as courageous editorial judgment dictates are in the public interest.

During the war the press of America proved it could voluntarily censor itself. In peace, the press must prove that it cannot be bulldozed by self-important officials who take it upon themselves to decide what the people should know about public affairs.

This is particularly true of the atom bomb. No one wants to throw that secret away. But similarly it is important to be sure the secret is not being spirited away while the nation sits complacently by, the target for an even more terrible Pearl Harbor than the last.

Everybody Hit By Miners' Strike

AS THE IMPACT of the miners' strike becomes felt more directly by millions of Americans, in small ways as well as large, an impression is gaining ground that those whom union agitators call "the enemies of labor" would be much less effective in bringing about restrictive legislation by the new congress than are those who follow the John L. Lewis leadership, and the directing heads of other unions who endorse his policies.

Just now the entire nation is at the mercy of one man, who flouts the federal court and totally disregards the public welfare—but that cannot be accepted as a permanent condition.

Something in the way of effective restraint must be placed on the radical elements of labor organizations, just as—years ago—restraints were placed on the excesses of some greedy operators of mines, industries and transportation systems, who enriched themselves without regard for needs or safety of employes.

In recent years, however, the swing of the pendulum has been too far in the opposite direction for the national good, and the time has come for a reappraisal of values in the nation's economy, so that the inalienable rights of even the most lowly law-abiding citizens are not infringed upon by either the government or by large or small groups, bent on venting their own spleen or acting in self interest rather than contributing to the general welfare.

It may be hoped that sound judgment—not the anger engendered by the present deplorable situation—will determine the extent to which restrictive legislation shall go when the new congress gets into action. Meanwhile, John L. Lewis and those who approve his methods of procedure, are encouraging those who seek to hamper even the recognizedly legitimate purposes of labor organizations.

'Right' To Ban Children Upheld

THIS WEEK'S Ohio supreme court decision — by 4-3 majority—that landlords can restrict use of property to adults only, does no more than state what four members of the court believe to be a "right", rather than to sanction a policy for which there is frequently no appearance of justification.

It cannot be doubted that there are some apartment houses that are unsuited to the occupancy of children, but the extreme to which the ban against babies and young children has been carried by landlords in some cities is a serious reflection on persons who object to the presence of children in the same apartment building or residential neighborhood.

Landlords, of course, are privileged to choose their tenants, and these are assumed to be willing to abide by any rules and regulations made known in advance of moving into a dwelling or apartment—but if there are to be apartments to which no children are admitted there should also be equally desirable apartments from which tenants without children would be barred, as is already in vogue in some cities.

306 Do Deciding For 5,000 Workers

NOT THAT it matters particularly, except that it is a subject on which the people of Mansfield, as well as employes of Westinghouse, are entitled to be informed, an item in yesterday's News-Journal revealed that it was by a narrow margin of 18 votes that Joseph Hawkins was re-elected president of Local 711, United Electrical Workers (CIO), over his opponent, Philip Schwaner, at last Sunday's election.

It appears that the actual total of votes cast at the election was 594, instead of 608, as previously mentioned, which is a rather inconsequential difference when it is considered that this represents the voting interest of a claimed 5,000 membership.

More impressive, however, is that retention of Mr. Hawkins as president of the local was accomplished by the support given him by 306 out of the 5,000 members of the union of which he was the directing head during the longest and costliest strike in Mansfield's industrial history.

According to archeologists, starting around 13000 B. C., there is a gap of about 7,000 years in the history of man's activity on this continent—which seems like entirely too long for any one strike.

You may also have noticed that some of the scarce articles are becoming available—now that the price has been doubled . . . or more.

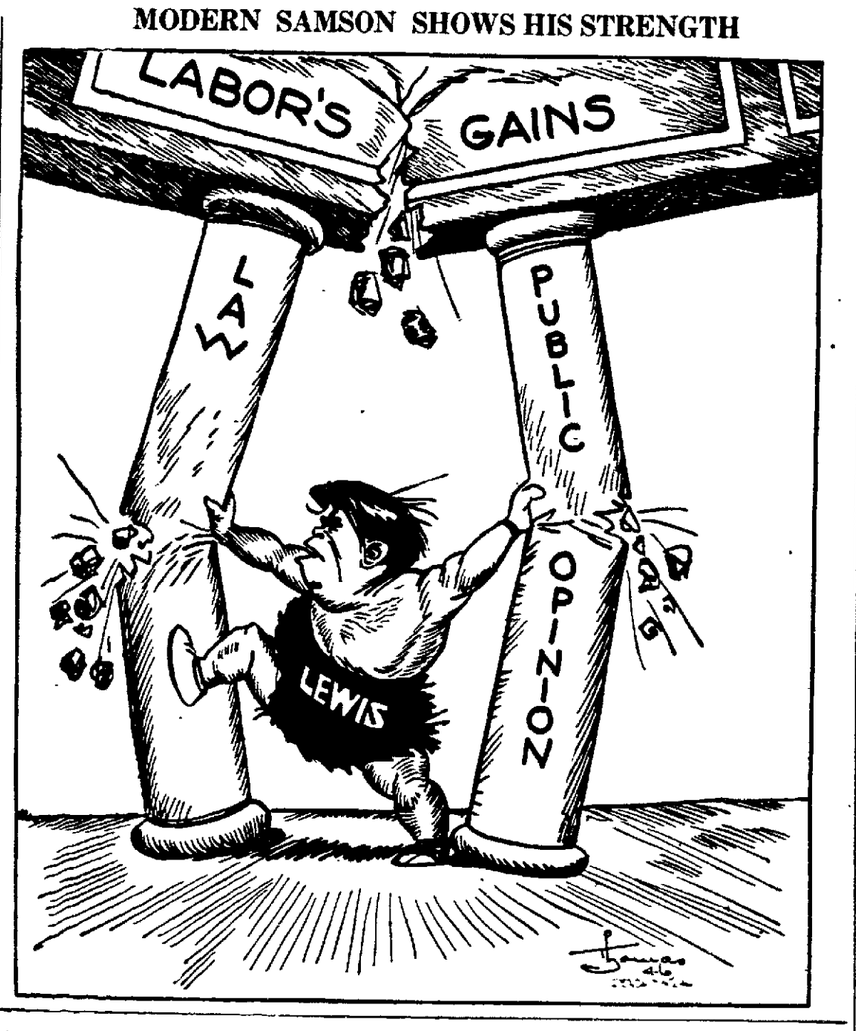
MODERN SAMSON SHOWS HIS STRENGTH



Joining British-American Zones Will Hasten Russian Agreement

By RAYMOND MOLEY

WHEN the Potsdam agreement was made, 16 months ago, the author of this column sought the opinion of an economist intimately familiar with Germany and respected throughout Europe. He said the agreement could not work out.

His opinion has now been justified by the facts. Potsdam has failed.

The same expert says, this week, that the new Anglo-American agreement has a good chance to work and, what is more, that it is likely to bring Russia to a satisfactory solution of the German problem.

For the Russian zone desperately needs union with the Anglo-American zones. As the industry of western Germany develops, the Russian need for its products will increase.

The Russian zone is mainly agricultural, with only one big industrial center—the Berlin area. It has some lignite, or brown coal, but the amount is not sufficient for the 25,000,000 inhabitants of the Russian zone.

The Russians have rather stupidly removed much industrial equipment, which they have been unable to use profitably and which has sharpened their dependence on outside help. That outside help must come, to a great extent, from the American and British zones.

The French zone is primarily agricultural, with small cities and not over 6,000,000 inhabitants. This area will be almost self-sufficient. Exploitation of the resources of the Saar Basin should enable the French to supply any necessary help without economic loss.

The American zone is mainly agricultural, with about 18,000,000 inhabitants. Its southern portion is self-supporting. Its industrial areas, Frankfurt and Mannheim-Ludwigshafen, contain the bulk of the German chemical industry and most of the machine tool plants.

It is officially estimated that the American zone will need outside help to the extent of $200,000,000 for the first year and half that for two more years.

The greatest problem is the British zone. Its center is the greatest industrial area of Europe, the Ruhr Basin. In normal times, it lived by selling coal, iron, chemicals and finished products to the rest of Germany, with a comfortable margin for export. Much of this industrial plant has been dismantled as a war potential. The area desperately needs food, which will cost $250,000,000 annually for two years, and, half that, for two years more.

The merger of the British and American zones will go a long way toward the re-establishment of German self-sufficiency. But expert opinion indicates that official claims, that in three years two-thirds of Germany will be self-sufficient, are too optimistic. It is still true that all Germany will require two or three billion dollars in inverse reparations and that most of this the United States will have to bear. Payments may have to be made for seven or eight years.

The Anglo-American merger makes our economic position in dealing with the Russians much stronger than before. The Russians will soon seek some agreement with the British and Americans.

But the radical land reforms, which the Russians have performed in eastern Germany, will make merger difficult. Also, German currency and banking problems must be settled so that the same monetary unit which prevails within the British-American zones will be valid and exchangeable in the Russian zone.

These differences can be settled after not too long a delay. There is no reason why Russia should not follow the example of the two great powers by merging its zone and thus improving the economic basis for future reparations.

Young Men Are Asking For Jobs and Peace.

WASHINGTON — All over the world the young men are knocking at the doors. Most of them carried guns in the war. Some of them in other lands are cold and hungry. Some in other lands, and some here, are looking for jobs. Some who are given to thinking, slender young fellows with a line across their brows ahead of time, are knocking on the doors with ideas and schemes for peace.

Such a one knocked on my door. He had an interesting plan. Only it is probably too radical.

Yet all we wants to do is to use all the agencies of the United Nations for what he calls a "world prosperity campaign." He wants to get everybody at work all over the world and everybody fed and housed and clothed and thus content.

To do this, all it takes is to use the resources and the people of the world just as if they were the people of one nation.

His name is Robert Rosamond of Philadelphia. He is 26 years old. He is a graduate of Temple university in Philadelphia. He has been an accountant for numerous business corporations in recent years. Between times he has worked on his plan and knocked on doors here at the state department, at the capitol, in business buildings in New York and elsewhere.

He would make one addition to the present United Nations structure. This would be a world budget made up by a world budget committee on which all the United Nations would be represented.

It would determine the needs of people everywhere and, through financial assistance from the international bank and from private capital, it would try to meet these needs, start new industries, start agriculture going, open trade opportunities.

As he points out, there are so many areas practically untapped, such as India and China. In so many other places the ravages of war must be repaired.

The world budget would be set up under the economic and social council of United Nations. He cited authority in the charter for creation by the council of other agencies.

He has quite a prospectus, nicely gotten up and written, which tells of the vast resources of the world and how they are not used; of the capacity for producing food for everybody with so many millions starving; of the capacity of manufacturing everything everybody needs with so many people without bare necessities. Beyond all this, he would harness the atom for peaceful purposes.

"To achieve universal tranquility and efectively to harness the atom we must divert the hatreds rising from everywhere and channel the tremendous energies unleashed by World War II into a constructive program for world development," it says somewhat formally, but with meaning.

"A well-fed busy world would be the least likely to start a war," it says in another place. "But a world which struggles outside our doors may soon try to break down these doors."

It is not so much what the young man says—and it makes plenty of sense—but the fact that he is saying it, and that thousands more like him have interested themselves in various projects for an ultimate world government.

When the young man opened the door he said, with conviction in his voice and a flame in his eye:

"I've got the greatest story in the world for you."

I think maybe he was right.

Looking Back

TWINTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Tuesday, Dec. 7, 1926.

The relief and a sound solution of farm problems were advocated by President Coolidge in his message to congress.

Membership of 527 was reported by Chamber of Commerce, due to success of "In and Out club" idea.

Clanup of museum in Memorial building was started by volunteer workers, after ten years of disuse. (How it is now?).

Robert W. Stephenson was elected commander of Charles Dick camp Spanish war veterans, succeeding Walter B. Ober.

Ordinance creating Fifth ward was given first reading in council.

Police reported that seven children had been injured in coasting accidents on icy streets.

Night depository system was installed in new Citizens National bank building.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

On December 7, 1829, the British government issued a mandate prohibiting in India the custom of the immolation of widows on their husbands' funeral pyres.

Cost Reduces Demand.

Just a few months ago optimists in and out of the light plane industry were predicting that the market for private aircraft had only been scratched and that in 1947 nothing less than 175,000 new private planes would satisfy the demand.

It is time to deflate such notions of the postwar market for personal aircraft. During 1946 some 30,000 small planes will be built in the United States—six times the number of any prewar year—and already the industry is running into sales resistance, far short of the goals predicted even by the more pessimistic among the optimists.

Some plane makers are cutting down on production and are laying off workers. Others are postponing indefinitely new models they had intended to turn out.

The market for private airplanes is not determined by the number of people who have learned to fly, but by the price of airplanes.—Minneapolis Star.

Lippmann's 'Today and Tomorrow'

Evils of Presidential Succession Foreseen By Founding Fathers

I AM PRINTING a letter which came to me recently from Lucius Wilmerding, jr., of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton.

It deals with an aspect of the general problem of the presidential succession which it is becoming increasingly important for us all to think about.

Mr. Wilmerding writes as follows:

"It is interesting to inquire what the founding fathers would themselves have thought of the proposal for an intermediate election if the present case had hypothetically been presented to them. I think they would not have concerned themselves much with any argument drawn from the results of the recent election. They EXPECTED the president and the congress to be occasionally at political odds, and their whole care was to strengthen the former against a tendency to usurpation in the latter. 'It is essential,' said Madison, that the appointment of the executive should either be drawn from some source, or held by some tenure, that will give him a free agency with regard to the legislature.'

What these truly wise men would have thought, if they had behind them our own very unfortunate experiences with governmental deadlocks, is a question which I shall not attempt to answer.

"Passing over this point, I would now observe that the founding fathers were VERY MUCH CONCERNED with the selection of a proper character for the vice-presidency. The office indeed was insignificant—almost the only one in the world, said John Adams, in which firmness and patience are useless, but the mode provided for filling it was such as to give some reasonable expectation that the person chosen would be a 'continental character.'

"The electors were not allowed to designate the candidates—such a one for president, such another one for vice-president—but were made to vote each for two persons as president, leaving it more or less to chance which would be president and which vice-president. Each elector, it was thought, would select two characters suitable for the presidency; the one highest in the vote would be president, the one second vice-president; both offices would be filled with men of presidential caliber or, at any rate, with men in whom the people repose the highest trust.

"But in 1800 this system broke down by reason of the electors discriminating in their minds which of the two persons voted for should be president and which vice-president; and in 1804 an amendment to the Constitution was adopted changing the whole spirit of the electoral system by the introduction of the designating principle. The effect of this innovation—the object of which was perhaps less to improve the mode of selection than to provide against the choice of a Federalist vice-president in 1804—is well known.

"It is not so well known that all the evils which have happened were accurately foreseen at the time. Here, for example, is a prophecy by Senator Plumer: 'The vice-president . . . will no longer be voted for as president of the United States, but as president of the senate—he will be elected TO PRESIDE OVER FORMS IN THIS HOUSE. He will have less dignity and be less respectable. This will be the unavoidable consequence of the change. In electing a SUBORDINATE OFFICER men do not, they will not, seek for, or require, those qualifications, which they deem requisite for SUPREME command.' (William Plumer's Memorandum of Proceedings in the United States Senate 1803-1807, P. 64.)

"The opportunity for political chicanery was much insisted on. Under the designated plan, the attention of the public would be wholly centered on the contest for the presidency; the vice-presidency would either be left to chance or prostituted to the basest purposes; 'Character, talent, virtue and merdit, will not be sought after in the candidate. The question will not be asked, is he capable? Is he honest? But can he by his name, by his connections, by his wealth, by his local situation, by his influence, or his intrigues, best promote the election of a president?' (Annals, Eighth Congress, first session, Col. 144). In short the new mode would expose the people to the selection of a less important and more unfit person than the constitutional provision.

"Bearing all this in mind, I think it is safe to say that IF the members of the federal convention had happened to proscribe the mode of voting for the presidency and vice-presidency which is now the rule, they would at the same time have provided for intermediate election in the event of the president's death or resignation.

"They would have done this, not to avoid a governmental deadlock, but because the same considerations would have weighed with them as weighed with the authors of the act of 1792 when they provided for a special election in the event of the succession passing to the president pro tem of the senate or to the speaker of the house.

A man who has not been voted on for the presidency ought not to hold the office for longer than it takes to choose a new president. Indeed the argument applies even more forcibly to the vice-president than to the president PRO-TEM of the senate or the speaker, since these have in point of fact been elected for office by the members of some constituency, while the vice-president has in truth been elected by no one. He rides into office on the coattails of the president."

Farmer's Diary

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

PERENNIAL

ONE chilly day at noon, I walked southward through a deep wooded valley. Beside a high-rooted stump, I sat down to rest. Idly moving my foot, I cleared a thick layer of leaves away, and there deep in the humus, rotting leaves and rootlets, I saw as perfect a clump of blooming, purple violets as might suit May or June.

I counted four soft blue flowers, with stems pressed against the ground. Only one tip of bloom was seared by frost—and it has frosted a score of times since September, and snowed a thick blanket of melting flakes after heavy rain.

I pressed my finger down against the nearest petal, to feel the chill moist softness of its tender surface. The entire plant seemed fresh and unwearied by late chill November, although weighted down with moist leaves and neighbored only by pale grass that crept close to the earth, warmer than the air above.

With thumb and finger, I touched once more the pale stems and light green leaves, wondering if this plant might withstand the rigorous winter and gain new life and strength when springtime comes. But I knew better. It was too soft, moist and yielding. The frost goes too deep, when snug winter sets in. What appears now so fresh and lovely will give back to its deep-set roots all it has of nourishment, and even make seeds perhaps to carry on into the future.

When spring winds thaw the snow crust until it moistens darkly the woodsy hollow, then the first bit of green will re-emerge. Roots never fail to keep the riches that are entrusted to them. They are Nature's stewards of all the green wealth of the open fields, the modest wild wood blooms, and the mighty sheltering forests.

Roots—fleshy, soft and yielding, yet so full of power that they crack the ancient boulders, crumble the rock-ribbed ridges, and change the lifeless elements of rocks into living tissues! This they can do, because they let themselves be the channels of natural living progress.

Man cannot rightly boast of what new creations of food and fiber he has created. He has worked along with Nature, to some extent, and has prospered by it. But precious natural secrets are all about that he is too stubborn and too blind to understand.

Yet every year new perfect plants spring from old roots—and with every generation mankind has a fresh chance to build out of the dead deeds of the past, a brighter page of history.

Fulbright Sticks To His Fantastic Idea.

WASHINGTON — Senator J. William Fulbright, Democrat, of Arkansas, is an irresponsible young man with deep convictions. He got soundly spanked for his "suggestion" that President Truman resign in favor of a Republican successor. But he is coming back for more.

Fulbright made his original proposal the ray after the Republican landslide. He suggested that the president name a Republican as secretary of state. Then, upon Mr. Truman's resignation, the Republican secretary of state would become president.

Strenuous objections were raised at once.

The Republicans pointed out that would give a Democrat the chance to name this Republican successor. The G. O. P. would never accept such a succession.

Mr. Truman would not even dignify the 'suggestion" with a press conference reply. A large section of the press went after Fulbright's scalp. Some editorial writers said that, because he had been a Rhodes scholar, he was persuaded in favor of all things British, including the parliamentary system.

Looking over a pile of clippings that reflect varying degrees of wrath, the senator from Arkansas grins goodnaturedly. He has a bill ready for introduction when the new congress meets which, if it is passed by a majority of both houses, would embody his "suggestion" in the law of the land.

The bill is similar to a law which was on the statute books from 1792 to 1886. The old law was approved by George Washington. It provided for the calling of an election of a president when the offices of president and vice president both became vacant by resignation or otherwise.

The founding fathers thought that a president might want to resign for various reasons. That is why the way of resignation was left open in the Constitution. That is why that early congress passed the law, which was repealed by the presidential succession act of 1886.

Under the Fulbright bill, the president pro-tem of the senate or the speaker of the house would act as president until congress could provide machinery for an election. No special election would be held if less than five months intervened before a regular presidential election.

Along with others on Capitol Hill, Fulbright does not take too seriously the talk of co-operation between the Republican congress and the Democratic president. They will both have the best intentions in the world but, human nature being what it is, the Republicans will hardly be able to resist the chance to destroy the Democratic party.

From 1930 to 1932, the Democrats did a war dance around the helpless Republicans.

They chopped the G. O. P. down to almost nothing. This made for top-heavy Democratic majorities in 1934 and 1936. The extremists had their way.

That, as Fulbright sees it, is always the consequence of a top-heavy majority. The radicals get control. In the Republican party, the radicals are those who would push reaction back at least to the McKinley era. They are the unreconstructed isolationists - nationalists who will take over certain key committees.

Trying Vitamin K In Chewing Gum.

NOW the talented vitamin K appears in still another role—as a preventive of cavities or tooth decay.

This use of vitamin K has been thoroughly studied by Dr. D. Y. Burrill and co-workers of Chicago. Vitamin K was put into chewing gum, together with a substance known as calcium carbonate.

It would appear that the chewing gum is a good means of spreading the vitamin throughout the mouth during the action of chewing, and in this way seems to aid materially in the prevention of tooth decay, even when the diet contains a great deal of sugar. The chewing gum itself may have some cleansing effect and also helps to stimulate the flow of alkaline saliva.

In Mouth Wash.

Vitamin K could also be put into mouth washes, tooth pastes and, possibly, into sugar and syrup. It is thought that the vitamin acts by preventing the formation of acids in the mouth which, it is believed, damage the teeth and allow decay to develop.

It has been noted that tooth decay may also be prevented to some degree by the use of fluorine in drinking water by persons who are particularly susceptible to tooth decay. According to Dr. Burrill, however, the vitamin K gum decreases caries or tooth decay to a greater extent than does the use of the fluorine-containing drinking water.

Vitamin K may not have any effect in slowing down the progress of decay, once it is well started, but it seems to help in keeping the decay from beginning.

A Group Test.

In carrying out the study on the vitamin K, one group of persons chewed the gum with the vitamin K in it after each meal for ten minutes, over a period of 18 months. Another group used the gum containing only calcium carbonate.

The vitamin K gum reduced the occurrence of new cavities from 60 per cent to 90 per cent, while the effect of the gum without the vitamin K was only half as good. There would seem to be no conditions in which this form of tooth decay prevention should not be employed.

At yet, this gum is not available for sale, but it is hoped that some preparations will soon be made which the public may employ.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you 12-7

LIGHTFOOT SHOWS REDDY

Lightfoot the Deer had said that ickly Porky the Porcupine was good neighbor even though not friendly one. "You'll have to ow me," Reddy Fox had snapped. "I didn't say that he is a good ighbor to you but that I have und him a good neighbor. So ve other members of the family. ickly Porky has helped us rough some hard times, and I n sure he will help us again if we ve need of help," said Lightfoot. Reddy still looked unconvinced. What is the joke?" he asked. Lightfoot shook his handsome ad. "There is no joke," said he. mean just what I have said."

"But you've contradicted your-lf. You have called him un-endly and a good neighbor. He n't be both," declared Reddy.

"Why can't he?" asked Light-ot.

"How can he?" retorted Reddy. "Were you ever starving and able to find so much as a scrap food?" asked Lightfoot.

Reddy grinned, but it was a wry grin. "That is I right this minute," said he.

"Supposing the most unfriendly person whom you know, even your worst enemy, should come along and leave a good meal for you and not interfere with you while you ate it and went on about your business. Would he or would he not be a good neighbor?" said Lightfoot.

Reddy thought this over for a minute. Then, being honest, he admitted that a person doing such an unheard-of thing would be a good neighbor. "But such a thing never happened. It is unheard of," he finished.

"It may never happen to you, but it happens to me now and then, and that grumbler up above us in this hemlock tree is the good neighbor. He isn't a good neighbor purposely, but that makes no difference. Probably he doesn't even know he is a good neighbor, just doesn't think anything about it. What he does isn't done because he is feeling friendly. He doesn't feel any more friendly then than at any other time. He would do it anyway," Lightfoot said.

"All that may be very true, but I could judge better if you tell what he does that makes him a good neighbor," responded Reddy and grinned again.

Just then a small hemlock branch fell between Reddy and Lightfoot. The latter reached out, picked it up and began to eat it. "That is what he does," said Lightfoot, chewing away as if that hemlock spray tasted very good, as indeed it did, there being little that was better to be found in the neighborhood

"You mean——" began Reddy.

"He feedes me," interrupted Lightfoot as another little branch fell on the snow. "If that isn't being a good neighbor, what is it?"

Reddy sighed. "No one is that good to me," said he.

"Of course he isn't doing it for me purposely. He would do it just the same if no one were around. I suppose that really is being wasteful. He is thinking of no one but himself. But what he drops uneaten isn't wasted after all. And we Deer are not the only ones to whom he is a good neighbor. Jumper the Hare gets a good meal in the same way we do when other food is hard to get. So there are times when we like to have Prickly Porky around," explained Lightfoot and reached for another mouthful.

Meanwhile Prickly Porky up in the hemlock tree whined and complained with nothing whatever to whine and complain about The truth is he was having a good time. Yes, sir, he was having a good time. Some folks find pleasure in whining and complaining, and he is one of them. With plenty to eat and no one to stop him from whining and complaining to his heart's content he was thoroughly happy, but to have heard him you never would have guessed.

Once again Reddy sighed. "You are lucky to have a good neighbor to feet you in hard times like these. Yes, sir, you are so," said he. Then he grinned. It was a rueful sort of grin. "But I never expected to hear Prickly Porky called a good neighbor," he added.

The next story: "Happy Jack Isn't Happy."

Winchell

On Broadway

A. JOLSON said to have dropped over $600,000 on recent stock market toboggans . . . Legit matinees were the worst in five years, according to ticket specs . . . New show biz tabloid (a la Variety) due in March . . . Does one of the biggest booking agencies know one of its execs left rubber chex at the Latin Quarter and La Conga (here) and the Mocambo in Philly? Nice ad for the agency . . . Sofee Tucker's 40th ann'y as a star is Dec. 9th . . . Muriel Jayne (featured vogalist at the St. James Infirmary on W. 45th) started there as a waitress two months ago . . . Intimates of Chas. Vidor (he married Doris Warner, Mervyn Leroy's ex) are trying to persuade him and Columbia Pictures' chief H. Cohn not to take their messy case into court. Because it would hurt Hollywood . . . Tragic tale told in Broadway movie marquee titles: Notorious Gentleman. The Chase. Deception. The Razor's Edge . . . Peter Lind Hayes reports the cost of living in Movietown has gone up $3 a quart.

"Dear Mr. Winchell," lovingly writes Director George Lewis of the National Laugh Week Foundation (sponsored by the Gagwriters Protective Ass'n) of 347 Madison Ave., "You will be happy to know that the Foundation has chosen Walter Winchell, the columnist, as the one who provided America with the most laughs and gags in 1946."

And all the time a certain anecjoke-lifter thawt he was.

* * *

Things-Are-Bad-All-Over Dep't: The Carnival last week paid M. Berle only $3,500 for his week's labors. The lowest weekly fee he's drawn there since he opened nine months ago—a far cry from the usual $10,000 weekly. He probably is looking around for a part-time job . . . Check your nightmares, kiddies. This is National Vaughn Monroe Dream Week! . . . Great Idea Dept: A hock shop's sign—three 8-Balls out front . . . A. W. 45th St. costumer has kluk uniforms for rent. They're on the shelf under the Santa costumes . . . Did you miss that riot in a 59th St. restaurant opposite the park? The riot squad came but not in time to prevent several skulls from being dented by thrown bottles and tables . . . L. Paul's new book, "Breakdown," is about a galcoholic. The author tells the col'm: "If you're worried about being an alcoholic, you aren't" . . . Sam Wanamaker just got a pay-hike for his acting-directing expertness in the Ingrid Bergman chick, "Joan of Lorraine."

When we met her she said she was once "Miss Chicago" . . . That she hoped for a break in show business via Broadway . . . A flop show, "Mr. Peebles and Mr. Hooker," cost the producer $150,000, but it started "Miss Chicago" (Cloris Leachman) on The Way . . . She witnessed the flopening with a critic . . . During the interval (as we say over in The Old Country) the critic introduced Cloris to an agent . . . Soooo, as a result of risking her life (and reputation) by attending a first-night with a critic, La Leachman met an agent who introduced her to Rodgers and Hammerstein in the lobby, who signed her for Norman Krasna's play, "William and Mary," which insiders hear may be a hit . . . Oh, yes, she was signed for the lead.

In the above saga the critic was I. Hoffman, and he introduced her to Agent Bill Liebling after Act One. After Act Two she met 20th Century-Fox's vice president (J. Moskowitz), who took an option on her film services. Too bad the couple didn't stay to see Act Three . . . Some of New York's night spots are so close to closing that employes phone in first and inquire: "Are we open tonight?" . . . People wouldn't miss most of these joints, anyhow . . . Business hasn't been so lousy since 1931 when the Republicans denied it . . . Who were the distaff columnists (at Ciro's in H'wood) that Mrs. Keenan Wynn and Lana Turner squared off against? We hear that "the scene was a swell all-femme shreeeeking squabble" . . . Ho, hum. Girls will be bores.

F. F. Schnitzer Taken by Death

Ferdinand Fred Schnitzer, 84, of 27 Blanch street, died Friday night at the Carmean Rest home in Willard, following a five-year illness.

Mr. Schnitzer was born in Columbus May 4, 1862, but came to Mansfield when a young man and had resided in this community since that time. For many years he was associated with his father, the late F. F. Schnitzer, in the contracting business. Later he worked as a millwright at the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, retiring in 1935. He was a member of St. Peter's Catholic church.

Surviving are four sons, Lamont of Toledo, Fred of Mt. Vernon, Leo of Mansfield and Louis of Detroit; five daughters, Mrs. Thomas Williams of Mansfield, Mrs. W. L. Deems, Mrs. Garry Gray and Mrs. Robert Rush, all of Cleveland, and Mrs. Martin Mathinson of Long Beach, Calif.; one brother, William, and one sister, Miss Pauline Schnitzer, both of Cleveland; 17 grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren.

The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home where it will remain until time for services Tuesday at 9:30 a. m. at St. Peter's Catholic church. Burial will be in the Catholic cemetery.

VETERAN O-B EMPLOYE DIES

Edwin V. Jacoby, 50, employe of the Ohio Brass company for the past 30 years, died early today at Mansfield General hospital after several months' illness. He resided at 113 Gettings place.

Born Jan. 7, 1896, in Philadelphia, Pa., Mr. Jacoby was a veteran of World War I. At the time of his death he was superintendent of the Sunday school of the Church of the Brethren in Lincoln Heights.

Surviving are his wife, Mary Miller Jacoby, one daughter, Mrs. Richard Thorpe; two sons, Edwin, jr., and David; one granddaughter; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Jacoby, and one sister, Mrs. Paul Jessen, all of Mansfield.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 1:30 p. m. at the Church of the Brethren in charge of Rev. C. E. Yoder. The body will be removed from the Wappner funeral home Monday at 10 a. m. to the church. Burial will be made in Mansfield cemetery.

Briefs

Billfold Stolen — Virgil Humphrey, Davey hotel, 270 North Main street, told police today a billfold containing $86 was stolen from a washroom at the hotel yesterday.

Motorist Charged — Loren W. Troescher, Willoughby, was released on $25 bond yesterday on a charge of speeding pending a hearing in municipal court Thursday.

Window Broken—Mrs. William T. Lightfoot, 114 North Franklin avenue told police that someone broke a front window at her home around 2 a. m. today. Police said that it was an accident and apparently no attempt was made to enter the home.

Civilian Aviation—C. W. Grove, president of the Second Federal Savings and Loan company, Cleveland, will be the speaker at next Tuesday's Rotary club meeting, to be held at the Mansfield-Leland hotel at 11:45 a. m. His subject will be "Civilian Aviation," and he will fly to Mansfield for the meeting. D. L. Burns is to be program chairman.

Fires Reported — The fire department answered three calls yesterday between 2:30 and 7:45 p. m. A 1946 model automobile was damaged slightly by a fire caused by defective wiring. A smoking furnace at a residence at 317 East Third street caused no damage. A burning wastepaper container at 335 Marion avenue was blamed for a fire which caused minor damage.

Sues for $10,771 After Accident

Bert K. Hopper, Lexington, R. D. 2, has filed suit in common pleas court against John H. Wetzleb, Dayton, for $10,771 damages he allegedly received to his person and auto when the car crashed into a truck parked on Lexington avenue the night of May 11, 1946.

Wetzleb, owner of the truck, had caused the vehicle to be parked without lights in an area forbidden for parking and at a spot approximately two feet from the curb, Hopper charges in a petition filed in common pleas court.
